

McNAMEE SPONSORED TWO NON-PROFITS FOR PARTNERS IN PHILANTHROPY

McNamee, Lochner, Titus & Williams, P.C. was proud to sponsor two Capital Region non-profit organizations for the Business Review's October 24, 2008, edition of Partners in Philanthropy. The firm, which has a history of community involvement and service, chose the Niskayuna Community Foundation plus Parsons Child and Family Center.

Niskayuna Community Foundation

Vincent L. Valenza, a principal in the firm and a board member of the Niskayuna Community Foundation, said, "Through organized philanthropy, the Niskayuna Community Foundation reflects the residents' cooperative spirit regarding the town and the school district. With an historic tradition of Capital Region involvement, our firm is proud to support Niskayuna and to help make a difference for the future."

Founded in 1968, the Niskayuna Community Foundation is a regional center for organized giving. With grants and donor opportunities, the Foundation also serves as a resource to augment community programs and initiatives for the Town of Niskayuna.

Parsons Child and Family Center

Richard D. Cirincione, a principal at the firm and secretary of the board of directors for Parsons Child and Family Center, offered comments. "Since 1829, Parsons Child and Family Center has been serving children and families, helping individuals reach their potential. My personal involvement has changed the lives of our own family members. Our firm acts upon its commitment to the Capital Regional community through the support of meaningful organizations such as Parsons.”

Dedicated to helping families and their children, Parsons is the largest multi-services agency in upstate New York. Encompassing a 30-county area and more than 40 school districts, last year the agency touched the lives of 9,000 people.

Collaboration through community involvement is one way that McNamee, Lochner, Titus & Williams continues its commitment to the non-profits of the Capital Region.
